C. E. KANE'S TRIP

MARYVILLE YOUNG MAN WRITES INTERESTINGLY OF VOYAGE.

STEAMER HAD NO GUARD

Submarine Was Sighted Once During Trip, But Shores Were Reached In Safety.

Charles E. Kane, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kane, who enlisted in the American Ambulance service and sailed for France June 25, with the other members of the University of Missouri unit, has written an interesting letter to his parents concerning his voyage across the water. The letter was written on board ship and is dated July 1.

"Nearly six days out and not seasick yet, although I certainly am inviting it by eating the best and largest meals the French line provides; and what is more, although the first three days of our voyage were clear and calm, the last two have been rough and today a storm is on, with rain and wind, and the boat is rocking from side to side. Most of us are not complaining, though, as this dark weather is just what is needed to get us safely past the U-boats. Every precaution is being taken. At night we run without lights. Even the lighting of matches on deck has been forbidden, as we have a "valuable cargo to protect, even if we don't care much for our own lives." Of course, the portholes are kept closed at night, which naturally makes the cabins stuffy. Everybody has a lifebelt near at hand, and the other day we had boat drill to see that we could find the lifeboats that had been assigned to us. There's a gun in front (fore) and one behind (aft), and day before yesterday they dropped an empty barrel overboard and took a shot at it with the aft gun. I never heard whether or not they hit it, but the sound certainly brought everybody running.

Just in the Danger Zone.

Today is Sunday, and as we are due at Bordeaux Tuesday or Wednesday we are just about in the danger zone at present. Rumor has it that we are to be taken care of by a warship the rest of the trip, beginning tomorrow, but there are so many rumors that you don't know which one to believe. At least, a good many persons are planning to sleep in their steamer chairs on deck, beginning with tonight.

I am very much at a loss as to what to tell you about our trip this far. I don't know just what you would care to hear about. It has all been new and very, very interesting to me; but I suppose we have felt and done just about what nearly every tourist has felt and done and written about. If you ever read an ocean voyage, you have a picture of ours, with the slight exceptions I have already named, occasioned by the weather and the war. The only way to appreciate such a trip as this is to take one yourself.

MONDAY

Guess I shall have to finish this letter on my own paper, as the ship's stationery seems to have run out. Small wonder: ever since we started, nearly every minute, night and day, at least ten or twelve persons have been using it. I have been just about as much an offender as any.

More signs of the U-boat menace. Today we really are in the danger zone, as we expect to see land some time tomorrow. Men are at the guns forward and aft; early this morning the boats were slung over the side and are now hanging ready to use. Most of the uniforms, which were worn proudly in the early part of the voyage, have disappeared, as we have been warned that the Germans may fire on lifeboats in which they see soldiers. Also, a notice this morning advised us to sleep in our regular clothing, with the lifebelts near at hand. If anything happens to us, we cant say we weren't prepared.

Trip Is Nearly Over.

Our trip is nearly over, and I can say I feel safer now, for even if the U-boats do get us we won't have to wait so long for help as we would have had to in the middle of the Atlantic. I am all ready to get on firm groundd again, for this evening is the beginning of our eighth day on board.

Yesterday, as I said, the sea was rough, and in the afternoon a storm developed, with rain and wind; so the deck became uncomfortable, but only a few got sick. The boat had a long, slow roll from side to side.

May Like the French.

The most impressive things about the voyage, to me, are the submarine danger, the ocean and the French. I have told you about the first and the second. The third you have to get used to on a French line boat such as this. I feel that I am going to like the French people very much, but I don't know that I can say as much for their language. All the notices around here are in French and English, but in order to get anything done you ought to know French, although English will get you by. Now and then a French class has been held by some Y. M. C. A. men on board and by careful remembrance of every new word you hear you can really pick up some of the drift of things, although I'll admit it will be a long time before I can do much real talking in French. Seems to me now I made a mistake by studying German, but I couldn't have got French in high school, and now I have a chance to know both.

It is now 5:30 and the gong is being sounded for dinner. I'll write you another folder tomorrow.

TUESDAY

Tomorrow we are scheduled to be in port, and today we are still making our way continuously through the submarine zone. The day is bright and sunshiny; the sea is blue and smooth, and we are supposed to have foiled one submarine already this afternoon; so why should we be unhappy?

Slept With Clothes On.

Last night everybody slept with his or her clothes on, and many of the passengers did their sleeping on deck, in the steamer chairs. Today, in addition, we have been zigzagging (that is, changing our course every few minutes), at a speed much greater than we maintained anywhere else. Also a close watch is being kept all over the ship, the gun crews being at their posts and alert all the time.

This morning, and again this noon, I had imagined that I could see a periscope plowing through the waves away behind us (and we can out-run any submarine afloat). Just about 1:30 this afternoon a great commotion set up on the aft deck; the ship slewed away around in a turn much shorter than I ever imagined she could make, and the aft gun was brought to bear upon something off to the port (left) side of the ship. Persons standing on that side of the ship declared they had seen a periscope plainly, but that the submarine had submerged before the gun could be brought into action. As the submarines are very slow, especially under water, the fear of an attack by that one evaporated rapidly, although many who had not done so before brought their lifebelts up on deck. I doubt if many will sleep tonight. So far, though, it hasn't been worrying me any.

Due in the Morning.

We are due at the mouth of the Gironde River, on which is Bordeaux, at an early hour in the morning. Even if we do make it then, I doubt if we shall be allowed to land before Thursday.

On the whole, this trip has been an extremely pleasant revelation to me, and I am almost sorry to see it draw to an end, although I must admit that the feel of firm ground again will be welcome. I only wish you could have been along.

The uncertainty as to what we shall do is still great, although most of us are pretty sure of having to drive trucks (including ammunition wagons), instead of ambulances. We probably shall have to go to a train-

MORE TROUBLE IN RUSSIA.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Copenhagen, July 21.—Disorders in Petrograd, mutiny at the front and further resignations from the Russian cabinet have aroused new anxiety over Russia. It is now recognized by a large number of officers that the plan of ruling troops by committees is a failure.

Washington, July 21.—Germany's answer to the American draft is to call her younger classes to the colors, is the confidential information that reached the war department. The decree was signed yesterday in Berlin. It will make available nearly 2,000,000 German youths who will report next March probably and below twenty-one years of age.

PROUD OF SERVICE

DEMOCRAT-FORUM ONLY COUNTY PAPER WITH FIRST DAY'S DRAFT

POSTERS DREW CROWDS

Hundreds of Men Received First News of Call From Yesterday's Lists Received By Telephone.

It is seldom that the Democrat-Forum mentions its service to the residents of Maryville and of the county, but yesterday's achievement in handling the story of the draft, the biggest piece of news that the country has had for some time, is deserving of the praise of every person in Nodaway county.

The drawing began in Washington at 9:49 o'clock (eastern time). At 9:30 (central time) the first numbers drawn were posted in the Democrat-Forum office windows, and these were quickly followed by the names and addresses of those drafted.

From that time on the numbers were received over the telephone every hour and were posted as quickly as the names and addresses could be looked up. For the excellent service the Democrat-Forum is indebted to Harry Todd of the Hanamo Telephone company, who took charge of the service personally, and also allowed the use of the windows in his new office for posters. H. L. Raines also allowed the use of his windows for the posting of numbers and names.

Thousands of persons, young and old, made use of the bulletins for their first information. All day yesterday the street in front of the office was crowded with vehicles and at times there was scarcely standing room on the sidewalks.

In the evening cars came from Ravenwood, from Burlington Junction and from many other towns in the county, and their occupants lingered long in the streets studying the posters.

At 1:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon handbills were circulated on the streets containing the names and the numbers of those who were drafted earliest. The daily edition of the Democrat-Forum gave these names and numbers with an additional list, all of which totaled more than 500.

Hundreds of telephone calls were answered today and yesterday in which information was given both to private individuals and to precinct registrars, concerning the draft.

Information was also furnished by long distance to Maitland, Grant City and other points.

In addition to being the only Nodaway county paper to serve its patrons with the first day's entire draft list, the Democrat-Forum printed exclusively the serial numbers of the men included in the draft according to towns, in its editions last week.

INSTRUCTIONS TO DR. WALLIS

Instructions to Exemption Board for Physical Exemptions Were Received This Morning by Co. Physician.

Dr. Frank C. Wallis, the examining physician for the exemption board, received this morning the instructions pertaining to the physical examination to be given to the men subject to draft. Dr. Wallis said the examination was not as rigid as he thought it would be.

The examination will be given to the men probably the latter part of next week. Dr. Wallis will use the jury room on the second floor of the court house for this purpose.

Will Go to Bigelow.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wilson of Burlington Junction and their guest, Miss Mary Bilby, of Bilby, Okla., and Miss Ruth Montgomery will drive to Bigelow tonight and will stay over Sunday.

Destroy $8,000 Bonds.

The school board destroyed $8,000 worth of bonds by fire this morning, having paid off this amount recently. Of the $75,000 issue for the new school building, only $23,000 remains unpaid.

Senate Rejects Wheat Amendment.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Washington, July 21.—The advocates of $2 as a minimum price for wheat scored a victory this afternoon when the senate rejected the amendment to have the President fix the wheat price. The vote was 46 to 33.

Mrs. Lester Dodge of Union Star, is the guest of Miss Gertrude Hilmer, who is attending the State Normal school.

IN HIS ELEMENT.

—Batchelor in New York Evening Journal.

LIST OF DRAFT NUMBERS

Following are the numbers in the order drawn. The drawn numbers, taken with the serial numbers of the registrants, will enable anyone subject to draft to determine whether he is in the first call or in what order he is later liable to call.

No numbers above 2281 are given here, as the numbers for this county do not run higher than that.

ENDS DRAFT WORK

MARSHAL CROWDER TODAY COMPLETING OFFICIAL TALLY.

DRAWING NOW FINISHED

Numbers Ran From 1 to 10,500 and Required Sixteen Hours and Thirty-Three Minutes for the Drawing.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Washington, July 21.—"Within five days they can begin making soldiers," Provost Marshal Crowder said this afternoon. "I am glad the strain is nearly over."

Sleepless for thirty-six hours, General Crowder was hurrying again today, taking final steps in the draft work. The official tally sheets are being checked over by expert clerks.

Examinations Next.

Washington, July 21.—"Now for the examinations and exemptions. Our work has just begun," said Provost Marshal General Crowder this morning. The work of notifying each exemption board in the country of the standing of eligibles is well under way. The new army will no doubt be several weeks late and officials say it will be in camp some time in September. Officials were highly delighted over the success of the drawing.

"Conscientious Objectors" Appearing.

Washington, July 21.—Eleven "conscientious objectors" from New York City appeared at the White House today to appeal to Wilson. They did not see the President who is on the steamer, Mayflower. The men claimed to have been sent as representatives of a mass meeting held last night.

Washington, July 21.—The drawing for the selective draft was finished at 2:18 a. m., this morning, when General Crowder drew the last number, which was 3,217.

The numbers drawn ran from 1 to 10,500 and the drawing required sixteen hours and thirty-three minutes. One mistake was made in the drawing and one blank was drawn.

ANSWERS MICHAELIS' SPEECH

British Press and Lloyd George Indicate That New Chancellor's Attitude Will Prolong War.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

London, July 21.—The British press commenting on the speech of the German chancellor on Thursday declared that it was a triumph for "Pan-Germanism." It is accepted as a foregone conclusion that the chancellor has destroyed all hope of an early peace and that the war will continue indefinitely.

Lloyd George Replies.

London, July 21.—Lloyd George in a speech at Queenshall this afternoon replied to the German chancellor by saying "Those responsible for German affairs have declared for the continuance of war. The junkers have thrown the former chancellor into waste and it won't be long before junkerism will follow him." He said Belgium must be restored and predicted that if the submarine menace is not eliminated this war will be followed by an even bloodier one.

Files Two Replevin Suits.

Two replevin suits for the possession of hounds were filed today in Justice W. L. Johnson's court by Virgil Gray by his next friend, Guy Gray, against Henry Upshulte and James Thompson. These cases were set for trial July 31. The value of Upschulte's hound was placed at $50, while Thompson's hound was placed at $75.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Montgomery and J. F. Montgomery will drive to Bigelow tomorrow and spend the day.

C. E. KANE'S TRIP

ing camp at Meaux shortly after we land. There are, I think, about 160 to 200 of us on board.

How Time Is Passed.

What do we do to pass the time? Eat a lot, sleep a lot, read, play games, smoke, loaf, watch the steerage passengers, look for submarines, take pictures, attend lectures and other entertainments on board. Sunday they had church, but I didn't attend. Saturday an athletic meet was held, in which the Missouri corps distinguished themselves by taking nearly all the second places. Benny Kline of Savannah took our only first place. It was in the sack race. I qualified as one of the heavy men in the tug-of-war, in which we beat the Stanford University unit of California in the opening match and then lost in the finals, to the Norton-Harjes unit from New York, which had beaten Boston Tech. Oh, there is plenty to do, and I am wondering where all my time has gone.

Weather Pretty Cold.

The weather has been pretty cold, and the wearing of overcoats, here early in July, does not seem at all strange. I'll bet you folks at home are about hot enough to melt. It looks now as if we are to celebrate the Fourth on board, as today is the third.

Gee, but this letter is getting away from me! I'll tell you two or three more things — and stop. If I tell you everything now, there won't be anything left to relate when I come home.

We have 635 passengers aboard, about evenly divided into ambulance men, steerage and other people, including many women and several children. We have several army officers on board, too, and seven aviators going over to join the American flying forces.

In my cabin are four berths. The other three are occupied by Cleburn Herndon of Plattsburg, Mo., a member of our unit; Mason Bingham, an ambulance man, unattached, from Boston; and Monsieur Solomon Hand, a French traveling man who has just "made" South America. He speaks six languages and is an experienced tourist. Most of us on this boat are now at the game, and thank goodness we are not bothered much by those bores who have "been over" about umpty-leven times and insist on telling you all about it.

I have a lot of needs, one of which may soon be money, as I have only about $80 left and I haven't tipped all the ship's force yet. Seems as if I've overlooked the captain and the bath steward, and maybe the first engineer. Wish I had my camera. Send it to me with a lot of film or else get me one of those vest-pocket autographic kodaks, and I shall be eternally grateful. The Paris address ought to get me. Too, I forgot to get my picture taken in uniform in New York, but I'll try to have that attended to over on this side.

Your loving son,
Charles E. Kane.

The Man Behind

"The Man Behind" was a good old song and it carried a lot of sense, and as for things we could understand, its teaching was just immense, for the fellow who fights in the foremost trench may first taste the tide of fight, but the man behind is backing him up and helping to do it right.

The man behind, in this busy world, is the fellow who knows the way and who shows how it can and should be done, never getting too sour or gay, but simply smiles through the weary miles and proves he's a good old Scout, by a word of cheer whispered in your ear, when you're certain you're down and out.

Aye, a Friend of Mine, is The Man Behind as well as the man in front. I know that the first and the second too are bearing the battle's brunt, and I know that they are brothers who feel and know they must fight in a telling way and the man with a gun and the man behind are going to win the day.

Irene Fenwick Here Monday.

A party of New Yorkers on a lark at Coney Island not long ago were attracted by a crowd that surrounded a sideshow brilliantly heralded as the Turkish Dream. Before it there danced a beautiful girl in cheap, near-oriental costume. Back of the crowd there stood a man shouting at her through a megaphone while a rough looking "barker" bawled at the mob before him.

"My dear, that is Irene Fenwick, as I live! What on earth can she be doing here?" gasped one of the party.

"Nonsense," declared another, "Irene Fenwick is one of the biggest stars on the stage today. Don't be silly. Wild horses could not drag her into such a place as that."

But it was Irene Fenwick and she is a bigger star than ever, for she was enacting a scene for "A Coney Island Princess," in which the Famous Players Film company presents her with Owen Moore for the first time on the Paramount program. This will be shown at the Empire Theatre Monday.

Eggs Shaped Like Letter "W."

The Journal a few weeks ago told of an old hen belonging to Frank Reeder that persisted in laying eggs shaped like the letter "W." Thinking it would break her of laying such eggs, the old hen was made to set, but as soon as this job was finished, "Biddy" again began to lay and every day an egg is found in her nest resembling the letter just spoken of which may indicate that the war is to last may years yet, or it might be the old fool is laying eggs for the I. W. W's. Ring her neck if she is.—Hopkins Journal.

WANT CARS LOADED FULL.

An appeal to the railroads of the country to obtain complete efficiency of transportation units by loading the freight cars to their full cubical or carrying capacity is made by the commission on car service of the railroad war board, headed by Fairfax Harrison.

"Many terminals, yards and industrial tracks are now taxed beyond their limits and they cannot be enlarged or extended to a material degree, but these tracks will be relieved if equipment is loaded to full capacity," says the appeal. "This will materially increase the total tonnage handled with better and more regular service."

It is explained that the average capacity of box cars is 39.7 tons, but the average load for a car now is only 15.6 tons, or 39 per cent of the capacity.

WAR PROSPERITY

BUSINESS WILL BE GOOD IN U. S. IN SPITE OF THE WAR.

MISSOURI TO HAVE MUCH

The Population of Our State Could Live in Comfort Without Imports or Exports.

A few days ago a leading business man of the town was taking a gloomy view of the future. Business has been ruined in Germany, shops closed and many activities at a standstill and there never has been war on German soil. Business has been wretched in France and is wrecked in England, therefore when we get a little further along business will stop here.

We cannot get his point of view. In the United States are a hundred million people. We probably will send into war on various routes, soldiers, workers, and unusual war occupations, ten million men. This leaves 90 million people to be fed and clothed and cared for in a country capable of supporting many hundred millions. Taking one out of ten from Independence would leave us at least 11,000 people to buy and sell and follow their usual occupations.

The war will make greater markets than ever. The money loaned to Europe will be paid to the United States manufacturers and will find its way back to the channels of circulation. The food stuff grown in this country will find a ready market and the surplus will be exported. Congress will continue to grind as usual and waste money and fill pages of the congressional record with eloquence. Merchants will continue to buy and sell, put their money into the banks, go to church, eat and drink and follow their usual vocations.

Often the boast has been made that if a wall were built around the state and nothing exported or imported, its population could live in comfort and never feel the difference, and this is true. Those who settled Missouri did this very thing for years. The state contains 68,735 square miles, or about 43,985,280 acres. One-half is suitable for cultivation and now is cultivated to only about 70 per cent efficiency. Three and one-half million people live in the state; and we grow cotton, corn, oats, potatoes, wheat, hemp, tobacco and a hundred other things in daily use and market. We furnish lead and zinc to the world. The average Missouri wheat yield in one year is 31 million bushels, corn 220 million bushels, over two bushels for every person in the United States.

Business will not stop in Missouri, it will not even hesitate. The crops will be raised ,and harvested, and marketed, and there will be work for everybody. Compare Missouri territory with Germany or France or England, and it will be easy to understand why results reported overseas will not have their counterpart here. England must get her food from boats, Germany with her hundred millions of people and her conquered territory would only make a spot on the map of the United States. — The Jackson Examiner.

TIME TO FIGHT FLIES

Much Good Can be Done Throughout Season in Combating Domestic Pests—Plan a Campaign.

While the logical time to fight the house flies is early in the spring before the pests have become numerous, effective work may be done throughout the fly season. Leonard Haseman of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture mentions the following points which will be helpful in combating flies. The three important points to be kept in mind in planning a campaign are: The swarms of flies must be kept down; they must be kept from coming in contact with germ-laden materials; and foods in the home and on the market must be protected from them. Flies breed largely in stables and in manure piles. Consequently, stables must be kept free from accumulations of manure. Breeding places, particularly the manure pile, should be treated to kill the fly larvae. One pound of commercial borax will treat 16 bushels of fresh horse manure. Community effort is necessary for efficient control, but farmers especially can do effective work by individual effort.

Persons interested in house fly control will find suggestions for eliminating the pest in Extension Service Circular 16, College of Agriculture, Columbia, Mo.

KILL HESSIAN FLY

EFFECT OF ACTION LAST FALL IS EVIDENT NOW.

INSECTS ARE DECREASING

There Will be Fewer Hessian Flies to Deal With This Year Than for Fifty Years.

With the Missouri Armies Afield, July.—"The effect of a concerted attack along the entire enemy front last fall is becoming more clearly evident each day. Our forces have been able to occupy positions which are of the utmost military importance. The enemy has been unable to reinforce his depleted ranks, and operations by several of our divisions have threatened his communications. If another drive accompanied by a continuation of the enveloping movement which characterized our advance last fall can be made again this year, a Teutonic invasion which began more than a century ago can be effectively checked." This is the summary of a report authorized today by Field Marshal T. J. Talbert of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture, who has charge of the hessian fly control forces in Missouri.

"There will be fewer hessian flies to deal with this fall than there have been at any time during the last fifty years," the report continues. "The fact that so many of the enemy have been destroyed should encourage the army of wheat growers to make another determined drive this fall to keep the insects under control.

"The hessian fly is now entrenched between the leaf sheath and stalk in the flaxseed stage at the bottom of the old wheat plant. Nearly all of the insects will remain in this position in the wheat stubble until about September. During July, August and early September they are most susceptible to attack, and their trenches may be easily taken without the use of gas, heavy artillery or massed infantry attacks.

"Instead of making artillery preparations the farmers should advance in the open to the first line trenches in the wheat stubble fields as soon after harvest as possible and by using the disc, plow, harrow and drag bury the hessian fly deeply beneath the soil. Miles and miles of trenches may be taken in this way without loss.

"Complete destruction of the enemy may be effected by cutting off his food supply. This can be done by discing and harrowing the plowed ground to keep down volunteer wheat. The hessian fly will make its general attack upon the fall wheat during September and October, after which it will entrench for the winter at the bottom of the wheat plants. Where destruction of the fly has not been thorough by eliminating volunteer wheat and plowing under infested stubble, sow the wheat late enough to escape the damaging fall brood of flies. The fly-free dates for this state are about as follows: For the northern third of the state, October 1; central third ,October 8 and the southern third, October 16.

"To make the fight against the hessian fly a success co-operation is essential and cannot be emphasized too strongly. If the fly is allowed to attack early wheat or volunteer wheat in the fall, it may emerge the following spring and damage wheat seriously."

C. E. KANE'S TRIP

MARYVILLE YOUNG MAN WRITES INTERESTINGLY OF VOYAGE.

STEAMER HAD NO GUARD

Submarine Was Sighted Once During Trip, But Shores Were Reached In Safety.

Charles E. Kane, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kane, who enlisted in the American Ambulance service and sailed for France June 25, with the other members of the University of Missouri unit, has written an interesting letter to his parents concerning his voyage across the water. The letter was written on board ship and is dated July 1.

"Nearly six days out and not seasick yet, although I certainly am inviting it by eating the best and largest meals the French line provides; and what is more, although the first three days of our voyage were clear and calm, the last two have been rough and today a storm is on, with rain and wind, and the boat is rocking from side to side. Most of us are not complaining, though, as this dark weather is just what is needed to get us safely past the U-boats. Every precaution is being taken. At night we run without lights. Even the lighting of matches on deck has been forbidden, as we have a "valuable cargo to protect, even if we don't care much for our own lives." Of course, the portholes are kept closed at night, which naturally makes the cabins stuffy. Everybody has a lifebelt near at hand, and the other day we had boat drill to see that we could find the lifeboats that had been assigned to us. There's a gun in front (fore) and one behind (aft), and day before yesterday they dropped an empty barrel overboard and took a shot at it with the aft gun. I never heard whether or not they hit it, but the sound certainly brought everybody running.

Just in the Danger Zone.

Today is Sunday, and as we are due at Bordeaux Tuesday or Wednesday we are just about in the danger zone at present. Rumor has it that we are to be taken care of by a warship the rest of the trip, beginning tomorrow, but there are so many rumors that you don't know which one to believe. At least, a good many persons are planning to sleep in their steamer chairs on deck, beginning with tonight.

I am very much at a loss as to what to tell you about our trip this far. I don't know just what you would care to hear about. It has all been new and very, very interesting to me; but I suppose we have felt and done just about what nearly every tourist has felt and done and written about. If you ever read an ocean voyage, you have a picture of ours, with the slight exceptions I have already named, occasioned by the weather and the war. The only way to appreciate such a trip as this is to take one yourself.

Guess I shall have to finish this letter on my own paper, as the ship's stationery seems to have run out. Small wonder: ever since we started, nearly every minute, night and day, at least ten or twelve persons have been using it. I have been just about as much an offender as any.

More signs of the U-boat menace. Today we really are in the danger zone, as we expect to see land some time tomorrow. Men are at the guns forward and aft; early this morning the boats were slung over the side and are now hanging ready to use. Most of the uniforms, which were worn proudly in the early part of the voyage, have disappeared, as we have been warned that the Germans may fire on lifeboats in which they see soldiers. Also, a notice this morning advised us to sleep in our regular clothing, with the lifebelts near at hand. If anything happens to us, we cant say we weren't prepared.

Trip Is Nearly Over.

Our trip is nearly over, and I can say I feel safer now, for even if the U-boats do get us we won't have to wait so long for help as we would have had to in the middle of the Atlantic. I am all ready to get on firm groundd again, for this evening is the beginning of our eighth day on board.

Yesterday, as I said, the sea was rough, and in the afternoon a storm developed, with rain and wind; so the deck became uncomfortable, but only a few got sick. The boat had a long, slow roll from side to side.

May Like the French.

The most impressive things about the voyage, to me, are the submarine danger, the ocean and the French. I have told you about the first and the second. The third you have to get used to on a French line boat such as this. I feel that I am going to like the French people very much, but I don't know that I can say as much for their language. All the notices around here are in French and English, but in order to get anything done you ought to know French, although English will get you by. Now and then a French class has been held by some Y. M. C. A. men on board and by careful remembrance of every new word you hear you can really pick up some of the drift of things, although I'll admit it will be a long time before I can do much real talking in French. Seems to me now I made a mistake by studying German, but I couldn't have got French in high school; and now I have a chance to know both.

It is now 5:30 and the gong is being sounded for dinner. I'll write you another folder tomorrow.

TUESDAY

Tomorrow we are scheduled to be in port, and today we are still making our way continuously through the submarine zone. The day is bright and sunshiny; the sea is blue and smooth, and we are supposed to have foiled one submarine already this afternoon; so why should we be unhappy?

Slept With Clothes On.

Last night everybody slept with his or her clothes on, and many of the passengers did their sleeping on deck, in the steamer chairs. Today, in addition, we have been zigzagging (that is, changing our course every few minutes), at a speed much greater than we maintained anywhere else. Also a close watch is being kept all over the ship, the gun crews being at their posts and alert all the time.

This morning, and again this noon, I had imagined that I could see a periscope plowing through the waves away behind us (and we can out-run any submarine afloat). Just about 1:30 this afternoon a great commotion set up on the aft deck; the ship slewed away around in a turn much shorter than I ever imagined she could make, and the aft gun was brought to bear upon something off to the port (left) side of the ship. Persons standing on that side of the ship declared they had seen a periscope plainly, but that the submarine had submerged before the gun could be brought into action. As the submarines are very slow, especially under water, the fear of an attack by that one evaporated rapidly, although many who had not done so before brought their lifebelts up on deck. I doubt if many will sleep tonight. So far, though, it hasn't been worrying me any.

Due in the Morning.

We are due at the mouth of the Gironde River, on which is Bordeaux, at an early hour in the morning. Even if we do make it then, I doubt if we shall be allowed to land before Thursday.

On the whole, this trip has been an extremely pleasant revelation to me, and I am almost sorry to see it draw to an end, although I must admit that the feel of firm ground again will be welcome. I only wish you could have been along.

The uncertainty as to what we shall do is still great, although most of us are pretty sure of having to drive trucks (including ammunition wagons), instead of ambulances. We probably shall have to go to a train-

PROUD OF SERVICE

DEMOCRAT-FORUM ONLY COUNTY PAPER WITH FIRST DAY'S DRAFT

POSTERS DREW CROWDS

Hundreds of Men Received First News of Call From Yesterday's Lists Received By Telephone.

It is seldom that the Democrat-Forum mentions its service to the residents of Maryville and of the county, but yesterday's achievement in handling the story of the draft, the biggest piece of news that the country has had for some time, is deserving of the praise of every person in Nodaway county.

The drawing began in Washington at 9:49 o'clock (eastern time). At 9:30 (central time) the first numbers drawn were posted in the Democrat-Forum office windows, and these were quickly followed by the names and addresses of those drafted.

From that time on the numbers were received over the telephone every hour and were posted as quickly as the names and addresses could be looked up.. For the excellent service the Democrat-Forum is indebted to Harry Todd of the Hanamo Telephone company, who took charge of the service personally, and also allowed the use of the windows in his new office for posters. H. L. Raines also allowed the use of his windows for the posting of numbers and names.

Thousands of persons, young and old, made use of the bulletins for their first information. All day yesterday the street in front of the office was crowded with vehicles and at times there was scarcely standing room on the sidewalks.

In the evening cars came from Ravenwood, from Burlington Junction and from many other towns in the county, and their occupants lingered long in the streets studying the posters.

At 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon handbills were circulated on the streets containing the names and the numbers of those who were drafted earliest. The daily edition of the Democrat-Forum gave these names and numbers with an additional list, all of which totaled more than 500.

Hundreds of telephone calls were answered today and yesterday in which information was given both to private individuals and to precinct registrars, concerning the draft.

Information was also furnished by long distance to Maitland, Grant City and other points.

In addition to being the only Nodaway county paper to serve its patrons with the first day's entire draft list, the Democrat-Forum printed exclusively the serial numbers of the men included in the draft according to towns, in its editions last week.

INSTRUCTIONS TO DR. WALLIS

Instructions to Exemption Board for Physical Exemptions Were Received This Morning by Co. Physician.

Dr. Frank C. Wallis, the examining physician for the exemption board, received this morning the instructions pertaining to the physical examination to be given to the men subject to draft. Dr. Wallis said the examination was not as rigid as he thought it would be.

The examination will be given to the men probably the latter part of next week. Dr. Wallis will use the jury room on the second floor of the court house for this purpose.

Will Go to Bigelow.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wilson of Burlington Junction and their guest, Miss Mary Bilby, of Bilby, Okla., and Miss Ruth Montgomery will drive to Bigelow tonight and will stay over Sunday.

Destroy $8,000 Bonds.

The school board destroyed $8,000 worth of bonds by fire this morning, having paid off this amount recently. Of the $75,000 issue for the new school building, only $23,000 remains unpaid.

Senate Rejects Wheat Amendment.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Washington, July 21.—The advocates of $2 as a minimum price for wheat scored a victory this afternoon when the senate rejected the amendment to have the President fix the wheat price. The vote was 46 to 33.

Mrs. Lester Dodge of Union Star, is the guest of Miss Gertrude Hilmer, who is attending the State Normal school.

IN HIS ELEMENT.

LIST OF DRAFT NUMBERS

Following are the numbers in the order drawn. The drawn numbers, taken with the serial numbers of the registrants, will enable anyone subject to draft to determine whether he is in the first call or in what order he is later liable to call.

No numbers above 2281 are given here, as the numbers for this county do not run higher than that.

ENDS DRAFT WORK

DRAWING NOW FINISHED

Numbers Ran From 1 to 10,500 and Required Sixteen Hours and Thirty-Three Minutes for the Drawing.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Washington, July 21.—"Within five days they can begin making soldiers," Provost Marshal Crowder said this afternoon. "I am glad the strain is nearly over."

Sleepless for thirty-six hours, General Crowder was hurrying again today, taking final steps in the draft work. The official tally sheets are being checked over by expert clerks.

Examinations Next.

Washington, July 21.—"Now for the examinations and exemptions. Our work has just begun," said Provost Marshal General Crowder this morning. The work of notifying each exemption board in the country of the standing of eligibles is well under way. The new army will no doubt be several weeks late and officials say it will be in camp some time in September. Officials were highly delighted over the success of the drawing.

"Conscientious Objectors" Appearing.

Washington, July 21.—Eleven "conscientious objectors" from New York City appeared at the White House today to appeal to Wilson. They did not see the President who is on the steamer, Mayflower. The men claimed to have been sent as representatives of a mass meeting held last night.

Washington, July 21.—The drawing for the selective draft was finished at 2:18 a. m., this morning, when General Crowder drew the last number, which was 3,217.

The numbers drawn ran from 1 to 10,500 and the drawing required sixteen hours and thirty-three minutes. One mistake was made in the drawing and one blank was drawn.

ANSWERS MICHAELIS' SPEECH

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

London, July 21.—The British press commenting on the speech of the German chancellor on Thursday declared that it was a triumph for "'Pan-Germanism." It is accepted as a foregone conclusion that the chancellor has destroyed all hope of an early peace and that the war will continue indefinitely.

Lloyd George Replies.

London, July 21.—Lloyd George in a speech at Queenshall this afternoon replied to the German chancellor by saying "Those responsible for German affairs have declared for the continuance of war. The junkers have thrown the former chancellor into waste and it won't be long before junkerism will follow him." He said Belgium must be restored and predicted that if the submarine menace is not eliminated this war will be followed by an even bloodier one.

Files Two Replevin Suits.

Two replevin suits for the possession of hounds were filed today in Justice W. L. Johnson's court by Virgil Gray by his next friend, Guy Gray, against Henry Upshulte and James Thompson. These cases were set for trial July 31. The value of Upschulte's hound was placed at $50, while Thompson's hound was placed at $75.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Montgomery and J. F. Montgomery will drive to Bigelow tomorrow and spend the day.

ing camp at Meaux shortly after we land. There are, I think, about 160 to 200 of us on board.

How Time Is Passed.

What do we do to pass the time? Eat a lot, sleep a lot, read, play games, smoke, loaf, watch the steerage passengers, look for submarines, take pictures, attend lectures and other entertainments on board. Sunday they had church, but I didn't attend. Saturday an athletic meet was held, in which the Missouri corps distinguished themselves by taking nearly all the second places. Benny Kline of Savannah took our only first place. It was in the sack race. I qualified as one of the heavy men in the tug-of-war, in which we beat the Stanford University unit of California in the opening match and then lost in the finals, to the Norton-Harjes unit from New York, which had beaten Boston Tech. Oh, there is plenty to do, and I am wondering where all my time has gone.

Weather Pretty Cold.

The weather has been pretty cold, and the wearing of overcoats, here early in July, does not seem at all strange. I'll bet you folks at home are about hot enough to melt. It looks now as if we are to celebrate the Fourth on board, as today is the third.

Gee, but this letter is getting away from me! I'll tell you two or three more things — and stop. If I tell you everything now, there won't be anything left to relate when I come home.

We have 635 passengers aboard, about evenly divided into ambulance men, steerage and other people, including many women and several children. We have several army officers on board, too, and seven aviators going over to join the American flying forces.

In my cabin are four berths. The other three are occupied by Cleburn Herndon of Plattsburg, Mo., a member of our unit; Mason Bingham, an ambulance man, unattached, from Boston; and Monsieur Solomon Hand, a French traveling man who has just "made" South America. He speaks six languages and is an experienced tourist. Most of us on this boat are now at the game, and thank goodness we are not bothered much by those bores who have "been over" about umpty-leven times and insist on telling you all about it.

I have a lot of needs, one of which may soon be money, as I have only about $80 left and I haven't tipped all the ship's force yet. Seems as if I've overlooked the captain and the bath steward, and maybe the first engineer. Wish I had my camera. Send it to me with a lot of film or else get me one of those vest-pocket autographic kodaks, and I shall be eternally grateful. The Paris address ought to get me. Too, I forgot to get my picture taken in uniform in New York, but I'll try to have that attended to over on this side.

Your loving son,
Charles E. Kane.

The Man Behind

"The Man Behind" was a good old song and it carried a lot of sense, and as for things we could understand, its teaching was just immense, for the fellow who fights in the foremost trench may first taste the tide of fight, but the man behind is backing him up and helping to do it right.

The man behind, in this busy world, is the fellow who knows the way and who shows how it can and should be done, never getting too sour or gay, but simply smiles through the weary miles and proves he's a good old Scout, by a word of cheer whispered in your ear, when you're certain you're down and out.

Aye, a Friend of Mine, is The Man Behind as well as the man in front. I know that the first and the second too are bearing the battle's brunt, and I know that they are brothers who feel and know they must fight in a telling way and the man with a gun and the man behind are going to win the day.

Irene Fenwick Here Monday.

A party of New Yorkers on a lark at Coney Island not long ago were attracted by a crowd that surrounded a sideshow brilliantly heralded as the Turkish Dream. Before it there danced a beautiful girl in cheap, near-oriental costume. Back of the crowd there stood a man shouting at her through a megaphone while a rough looking "barker" bawled at the mob before him.

"My dear, that is Irene Fenwick, as I live! What on earth can she be doing here?" gasped one of the party.

"Nonsense," declared another, "Irene Fenwick is one of the biggest stars on the stage today. Don't be silly. Wild horses could not drag her into such a place as that."

But it was Irene Fenwick and she is a bigger star than ever, for she was enacting a scene for "A Coney Island Princess," in which the Famous Players Film company presents her with Owen Moore for the first time on the Paramount program. This will be shown at the Empire Theatre Monday.

OLD MAGAZINES TO "SAMMIES."

A 1-Cent Stamp Without Address, Is Only Requirement.

Washington, July 21.—Magazines and newspapers bearing 1-cent stamps hereafter may be posted, unwrapped and unaddressed, by persons other than publishers and will be forwarded by postal authorities to American soldiers and sailors in Europe.

In announcing today plans for gathering reading matter conveying home news and fiction to the boys abroad, Postmaster General Burleson suggested that magazines print the following in the upper right hand corner of their front covers:

"Notice to the reader: When you have finished reading this magazine, place a 1-cent stamp on this notice, hand some to any postal employee and it will be placed in the hands of our soldiers and sailors at the front. No wrapping, no address."

The publications will be carried under parcel post classification at one cent each, regardless of weight. A concentration station has been designated in each state for assembling the reading matter.

Eggs Shaped Like Letter "W."

The Journal a few weeks ago told of an old hen belonging to Frank Reeder that persisted in laying eggs shaped like the letter "W." Thinking it would break her of laying such eggs, the old hen was made to set, but as soon as this job was finished, "Biddy" again began to lay and every day an egg is found in her nest resembling the letter just spoken of which may indicate that the war is to last may years yet, or it might be the old fool is laying eggs for the I. W. W's. Ring her neck if she is.—Hopkins Journal.

WANT CARS LOADED FULL.

An appeal to the railroads of the country to obtain complete efficiency of transportation units by loading the freight cars to their full cubical or carrying capacity is made by the commission on car service of the railroad war board, headed by Fairfax Harrison.

"Many terminals, yards and industrial tracks are now taxed beyond their limits and they cannot be enlarged or extended to a material degree, but these tracks will be relieved if equipment is loaded to full capacity," says the appeal. "This will materially increase the total tonnage handled with better and more regular service."

It is explained that the average capacity of box cars is 39.7 tons, but the average load for a car now is only 15.6 tons, or 39 per cent of the capacity.

WAR PROSPERITY

BUSINESS WILL BE GOOD IN U. S. IN SPITE OF THE WAR.

MISSOURI TO HAVE MUCH

The Population of Our State Could Live in Comfort Without Imports or Exports.

A few days ago a leading business man of the town was taking a gloomy view of the future. Business has been ruined in Germany, shops closed and many activities at a standstill and there never has been war on German soil. Business has been wretched in France and is wrecked in England, therefore when we get a little further along business will stop here.

We cannot get his point of view. In the United States are a hundred million people. We probably will send into war on various routes, soldiers, workers, and unusual war occupations, ten million men. This leaves 90 million people to be fed and clothed and cared for in a country capable of supporting many hundred millions. Taking one out of ten from Independence would leave us at least 11,000 people to buy and sell and follow their usual occupations.

The war will make greater markets than ever. The money loaned to Europe will be paid to the United States manufacturers and will find its way back to the channels of circulation. The food stuff grown in this country will find a ready market and the surplus will be exported. Congress will continue to grind as usual and waste money and fill pages of the congressional record with eloquence. Merchants will continue to buy and sell, put their money into the banks, go to church, eat and drink and follow their usual vocations.

Often the boast has been made that if a wall were built around the state and nothing exported or imported, its population could live in comfort and never feel the difference, and this is true. Those who settled Missouri did this very thing for years. The state contains 68,735 square miles, or about 43,985,280 acres. One-half is suitable for cultivation and now is cultivated to only about 70 per cent efficiency. Three and one-half million people live in the state; and we grow cotton, corn, oats, potatoes, wheat, hemp, tobacco and a hundred other things in daily use and market. We furnish lead and zinc to the world. The average Missouri wheat yield in one year is 31 million bushels, corn 220 million bushels, over two bushels for every person in the United States.

Business will not stop in Missouri, it will not even hesitate. The crops will be raised ,and harvested, and marketed, and there will be work for everybody. Compare Missouri territory with Germany or France or England, and it will be easy to understand why results reported overseas will not have their counterpart here. England must get her food from boats, Germany with her hundred millions of people and her conquered territory would only make a spot on the map of the United States. — The Jackson Examiner.

TIME TO FIGHT FLIES

Much Good Can be Done Throughout Season in Combating Domestic Pests—Plan a Campaign.

While the logical time to fight the house flies is early in the spring before the pests have become numerous, effective work may be done throughout the fly season. Leonard Haseman of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture mentions the following points which will be helpful in combating flies. The three important points to be kept in mind in planning a campaign are: The swarms of flies must be kept down; they must be kept from coming in contact with germ-laden materials; and foods in the home and on the market must be protected from them. Flies breed largely in stables and in manure piles. Consequently, stables must be kept free from accumulations of manure. Breeding places, particularly the manure pile, should be treated to kill the fly larvae. One pound of commercial borax will treat 16 bushels of fresh horse manure. Community effort is necessary for efficient control, but farmers especially can do effective work by individual effort.

Persons interested in house fly control will find suggestions for eliminating the pest in Extension Service Circular 16, College of Agriculture, Columbia, Mo.

KILL HESSIAN FLY

EFFECT OF ACTION LAST FALL IS EVIDENT NOW.

INSECTS ARE DECREASING

There Will be Fewer Hessian Flies to Deal With This Year Than for Fifty Years.

With the Missouri Armies Afield, July.—"The effect of a concerted attack along the entire enemy front last fall is becoming more clearly evident each day. Our forces have been able to occupy positions which are of the utmost military importance. The enemy has been unable to reinforce his depleted ranks, and operations by several of our divisions have threatened his communications. If another drive accompanied by a continuation of the enveloping movement which characterized our advance last fall can be made again this year, a Teutonic invasion which began more than a century ago can be effectively checked." This is the summary of a report authorized today by Field Marshal T. J. Talbert of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture, who has charge of the hessian fly control forces in Missouri.

"There will be fewer hessian flies to deal with this fall than there have been at any time during the last fifty years," the report continues. "The fact that so many of the enemy have been destroyed should encourage the army of wheat growers to make another determined drive this fall to keep the insects under control.

"The hessian fly is now entrenched between the leaf sheath and stalk in the flaxseed stage at the bottom of the old wheat plant. Nearly all of the insects will remain in this position in the wheat stubble until about September. During July, August and early September they are most susceptible to attack, and their trenches may be easily taken without the use of gas, heavy artillery or massed infantry attacks.

"Instead of making artillery preparations the farmers should advance in the open to the first line trenches in the wheat stubble fields as soon after harvest as possible and by using the disc, plow, harrow and drag bury the hessian fly deeply beneath the soil. Miles and miles of trenches may be taken in this way without loss.

"Complete destruction of the enemy may be effected by cutting off his food supply. This can be done by discing and harrowing the plowed ground to keep down volunteer wheat. The hessian fly will make its general attack upon the fall wheat during September and October, after which it will entrench for the winter at the bottom of the wheat plants. Where destruction of the fly has not been thorough by eliminating volunteer wheat and plowing under infested stubble, sow the wheat late enough to escape the damaging fall brood of flies. The fly-free dates for this state are about as follows: For the northern third of the state, October 1; central third ,October 8 and the southern third, October 16.

"To make the fight against the hessian fly a success co-operation is essential and cannot be emphasized too strongly. If the fly is allowed to attack early wheat or volunteer wheat in the fall, it may emerge the following spring and damage wheat seriously."

J. R. Lawson of Ravenwood is a Maryville visitor today.

Miss Clara Sherlock, will return from a two week's visit with relatives in Chicago. Miss Sherlock will go back to her work at the Haines store Monday morning.
